PLOT TO ASSASSINATE MUSSOLINI AT BIG FLORENCE FUNCTION

Claiming that she has not slept or partaken of any food or water for seven years, 44-year-old Mrs. Martha Nash, of St. Paul, Minn., offered to prove her feat to anyone or undergo any tests. Her husband declared he has never seen her eat, and is one of the three witnesses who signed a statement affirming Mrs. Nash's declaration.

KIANGSI WAR

MELODRAMATIC REPORTS IN THE CHINESE PRESS

"LARGELY WITHOUT FOUNDATION"

INTELLIGENCE OFFICER'S SCATHING COMMENT

(From Our Own Correspondent)

CANTON, YESTERDAY.—ABOUT 100 COMMUNIST SOLDIERS IN SOUTHERN Kiangsi WERE KILLED AT DAWN TO-DAY IN AIR RAIDS BY BOMBING PLANES. BOMBS OF 50 POUNDS AND 100 POUNDS EACH WERE DROPPED ON THE AREA BELIEVED TO BE OCCUPIED BY RED TROOPS.

To avoid being sighted, the Communists hide in bushes and trees in the daytime and fight only at night. Their method of warfare is quite novel and their methods sometimes take the Government forces by surprise.

Official reports stated to-day that the Reds have retired to Yutuh after making several unsuccessful attempts to invade Anyuan and Chungshuk. The same reports said that while the Communists were making an offensive on Anyuan as a feeler to the strength of the Government forces, other Red detachments escaped to the western provinces of Szechuen and Kwelchow.

REDS RETREAT TO YUTOW

Reassuring Reports From S. Kiangsi

ATTACK ONLY A BLIND?

Canton, Yesterday.—The Communist bandits after sustaining heavy losses in fighting the Kwangtung troops in Chungshuk and Anyuan, Kiangsi, have retreated to Yutow, according to a military officer who has just returned from the north.

Following General Yu Han-mow's return to Taiyu, the Kwangtung troops have been concentrated in the front line. Preparations for bringing pressure on the bandits' lair are now in full swing.

Air forces stationed at the front are sent out every day recently, to areas where the bandits are massed for bombing purposes. Many bandits are reported to have been killed.

BRITISH ACES AMAZE FLYING WORLD

AVERAGE OVER 200 M.P.H. FOR 2,176 MILES

CATHCART JONES AND WALLER IN RECORD-BREAKING DASH

Darwin, Yesterday.

An amazing speed for a long distance flight has so far been maintained by Cathcart Jones and K. F. H. Waller, the British pilots, who are attempting a record-breaking dash from Melbourne to England in the hope of smashing the present mark for the double journey.

Using the de Havilland Comet plane which carried them from Mildenhall to Melbourne in 11 1/2 hours to take the fourth place in the great air race, the flyers have averaged well over 200 miles per hour for a distance of 2,176 miles.

SEQUEL TO ALLEGED TENSION

PROTEST TO LONDON

London, Yesterday.

The Egyptian Charge d'Affaires here has protested to the Foreign Office against the tone of the British press as regards tension between the Residency and the Cairo Government.

It is understood that the reply stressed the freedom of the press in Britain and reiterated that the Government had entire confidence in the acting High Commissioner, Mr. Maurice Peterson.

Royal Cabinet Chief Appointed

FIRST TIME SINCE 1931

Cairo, Yesterday.—By Royal Decree, Ahmad Zewar Pasha has been appointed Chief of the Royal Cabinet. — Reuter.

The appointment has been made owing to the continued ill-health of King Fuad.

The Egyptian constitution does not provide for a Regent in the event of the King's incapacity. According to reports from Cairo, the Egyptian Premier, Yehia Pasha, (Continued on Page 20)

Tension Now Reported To Be Non-Existent

Alexandria, Later.

Premier Yehia Pasha, told Reuter on his return from an audience with King Fuad that he was delighted with the appointment of Ahmad Zewar Pasha, who is an ex-premier. Yehia Pasha declared that the reports of tension between himself and Ibrahim Pasha were concocted by the press. It is authoritatively stated that there is no tension between the Residency and the Palace and that it is understood that Yehia Pasha is now satisfied in regard to the position.

The office to which Zewar Pasha has been appointed has been vacant for a considerable time so there is no means by which Ibrahim Pasha can be replaced.

Until the relations between Zewar Pasha and Ibrahim Pasha are known, it cannot be gauged whether the appointment will be a check to him or not. — Reuter.

Taking off from Melbourne at 7.05 a.m. (local time) to-day, they reached Charleville, 787 miles away, at 10.50 a.m., an average speed of 209.8 miles per hour. This speed is faster than that for any long during the race.

They stayed only 40 minutes at Charleville, taking off for here at 11.30 a.m. and arriving at 5.45 p.m., covering the 1,389 miles distance in under seven hours—an average speed of 205.8 miles per hour. — Reuter.

Davis, in a great bid for supremacy during the afternoon session, reduced the deficit to 440 points, but failed to make full use of his session.

'CYNICISM COULD HARDLY GO FURTHER'

BITTER COMMENT ON JAPAN'S OIL MONOPOLY REPLY

London, Yesterday.

"Cynicism could hardly go further than the Japanese reply concerning the Manchukuo oil monopoly. If Japan had desired politically to point out what a rod the Powers had prepared for their own backs by tamely allowing her aggressions, she could hardly have done it more neatly," states the "News Chronicle" in a leading article to-day.

"The oil monopoly is only the beginning," the journal continues. "There is already talk of a tobacco monopoly, and other monopolies will doubtless follow to illustrate further the devotion of Japan and Manchukuo to the principle of the Open Door policy."

"The 'Daily Express' declares that it is certain that Japan will have her way in Manchukuo and will develop that business for the Japanese."

"The British Empire is our business. Let us mind it," the newspaper adds. — Reuter.

SHANGHAI BOY WELL BEATEN

Sydney, Yesterday.

Great Britain and Australia shared the four singles matches in the first golf "Test" encounter between the two countries here yesterday. The foursomes will be decided on Monday.

The results were: McLagan (Britain) beat Ferrier 5 and 4; Garnett (Britain) beat Apperley 5 and 4; McKay (Australia) beat Michael Scott 2 and 1; Ryan (Australia) beat Houn 1 up.

Jim Ferrier, New South Wales champion, is the well-known Shanghai boy, while Apperley is an ex-Amateur champion. McKay is the present Amateur champion of Australia, and Ryan was formerly Australian Open and Amateur champion. — Reuter.

Open Door Policy Must Be Respected

Chang Chun, Later.

A spokesman of the so-called Manchukuo Foreign Office said that the so-called Manchukuo had not received a representation from Britain or America regarding the oil control problem of the so-called Manchukuo. But that it would be irrelevant if Article III of the Nine Power Treaty was to be invoked in the case of the so-called Manchukuo, which was born under new circumstances.

The spokesman emphasized that the Open Door principle had definitely been pledged by the so-called Manchukuo's sovereignty and must be respected by the foreign powers regarding domestic affairs. — Reuter.

NANKING AND CANTON STILL POLES APART

NEW OPTIMISM NOT ECHOED IN SOUTH

JUDGE WANG MEETS CHIANG

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.—The optimistic outbursts from Nanking and Shanghai that an ultimate rapprochement between Canton and the National Government is possible, following the postponement of the Fifth National Congress of the Kuomintang representatives are not echoed here, although rumour of an "amiable solution" have assisted in pulling up the depreciating $1,500,000,000 loan bonds floated by the Ministry of Finance in the Shanghai markets.

Mr. Hsieh I-pang, senior secretary of the South-west Political Council, stated that the postponement of Fifth Congress does not settle anything, because the Congress will be held in Nanking.

The procession was headed by the coffins, and thousands of Black Shirts and civilians left Duomo and proceeded to the Church of Santa Croce, where the coffins were interred.

JAY WALKERS TO BE PENALISED IN GREAT BRITAIN

ON SAME FOOTING AS MOTORISTS

HORE-BELISHA'S NEW MOVE

London, Yesterday.

New regulations relating to pedestrian crossing have been issued by Mr. L. Hore-Belisha, Minister of Transport. He will not make it compulsory for pedestrians to use the specially marked crossings, but he will place the pedestrian on the same footing as the motorist regarding liability to punishment.

Henceforth, any person found guilty of a breach of the regulations will be liable to a summary conviction and a fine not exceeding £2. Previously, if motorists were convicted, they were liable to a fine not exceeding £5, while pedestrians who were similarly convicted had a maximum fine of five shillings laid down.

Under the new regulations, at crossings where traffic is controlled by police or signals, pedestrians have the absolute right of way only when traffic is definitely held up by a policeman's hand or a signal light.

In the case of crossings where traffic is not controlled by police signals, the pedestrian will have the right of way at all times, and traffic must give way to him.

Drivers have been urged to approach all crossings with care and to be prepared to stop if necessary, while vehicles must not stand at crossings. — Reuter.

Lady Peel will open the New Cheong Club, opposite the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank site, on Thursday, November 8 at 5 p.m.

SHORT STORY.

MY MONEY

By T. F. POWYS

THAT something curious was approaching the village, the blackbird, who sheltered where her last year's nest had been, upon a dark and gloomy afternoon in January, was well aware. She sat in an ivy-covered bush upon Madder Hill, in a spot that she believed to be the safest in the world for a harmless bird.

When, from the field near, she first saw something move in the lane below, coming her way, she gave her frightened cry, and hid herself in the green leaves to watch the lane.

A winter's day—though it takes no glass of wine for its trouble—makes the best mourner, for there is no good cheer in its looks, whatever it may hide below. The wet January wind makes all that is out of doors to drip, like a charnel vault, that is, often as not, the longest sorrower in any family.

A blackbird is near-sighted, and she would not be likely to understand that something seen at a distance grows larger when it comes near.

What Mistress Blackbird saw at the bottom of the lane she thought was a snail, and waited for it to come so that she might feast upon its body. When the snail came near, she gave her frightened cry and flew into the ivy-bush, for the snail was old Goddy, who carried his chair upon his back.

Though John Goddy was no king he had been turned out that very afternoon by his daughter, Gertrude, with whom he had lived at Dodder. His chair was his own, and so, taking that up, and a small bundle of clothes, he set off to walk to Madder, where his youngest daughter, Gracie, lived, who was married to a small farmer called Mr. Webber.

Though the chair wasn't of a heavy pattern, John Goddy found it weighty, and walked slowly. But he was merry enough at heart, and smiled at one or two passers-by, who stopped to stare at him. He knew there would be a place at the end of the journey to put his chair, and a fire to warm himself by. He wanted no bed; he would rather stretch himself out in his chair and sleep in the kitchen.

Once, at Dodder, a spark from a stick had jumped out and lit his beard on fire. He dreamed he was in Hell, but awoke at his usual time, with his beard all singed and his face blackened.

John Goddy worshipped fire. He would never go to church, because there was no hearth to sit by. Even in summer heats he would set light to any sticks he could find. His boots were always getting burnt, but he gave no heed to that.

As night falls upon a village, burdens are brought home. From the fields they are carried into the cottages. A straw stack, as the evening star shines over the hill, is robbed of a fine bundle which is carried home to the pigsty. Hay is brought for the fowls' nests. A gorse faggot, that will make a man into a sort of porcupine, passes up the lane and is laid in George Trim's woodshed.

John Goddy's burden, though it made him stoop somewhat, was more easy to carry than either straw or wood and so he came along pleasantly enough, though his gait, as the blackbird had seen, was snail-like.

The day was the first of January. Strange things are wont to be brought into the house on this, the opening of the new year. John Goddy had ever been one to give a proper respect to old manners and so he believed that to carry in his chair would bring good luck to the house, even though, as his daughter Gertrude would have said, a few of his lies would enter, too.

No one—even though he may have a pleasant home somewhere or other, with bright lights to welcome him—can pass through a village when darkness falls without wishing that one of the dimly-lit cottage kitchens had a corner for him. Indeed, from the doorway of one's life, one often gazes into a dark and dreary waste, where the livers-in-wait stay for us, and what but is not more secure and safe than the dark hills?

No one could peep into the room where Grace Webber had just poured the hot water into the tea-pot, without wishing himself there, too, and—perhaps—for travellers will have warm thought—wish Mr. Webber still in the cow-byre, from whence he now came, with his lantern to take his place at the table.

A pleasant thing to watch is a young mother, for nature gives her a glory that no virgin knows, and though her eyes may be bright and her laughter merry, as a maiden's are, there is a look in all her movements, which says the crown of womanhood is here.

Labour that provides food sufficient for the day is a kindly master and gives happy looks. By just taking a peep into that warm, pleasant kitchen, that was the living room too, with a scent of tea, and the friendly look of the lamp—that is no garish look like the sun—a joy as deep as Madder Hill may be felt, that only the hand of death, or extreme poverty can destroy.

Grace Webber had cut Tommy and her husband their bread and butter, when a knock came at the door—a queer-sounding knock, not a plain rap with the knuckles, but rather, a pushing against the door from something outside.

Henry Webber opened the door, and was slowly forced back into the kitchen by a large cane chair.

As soon as he was seated before the fire, and before he took his tea, John Goddy began to abuse his daughter, Gertrude, who lived in Dodder and with whom he had boarded for five years.

He found nothing too ill or too evil to say about her or about her husband, whose name was Brine. Fred, John Goddy called him. It was Fred who denied him his pipe, and gave him to the devil if ever he moved his chair from one place to another, in the fond hope of getting himself near to the fire.

"All people at Dodder do talk about Gertrude!" John Goddy said. "She do have fellows in at all hours when Fred be out, and then I be pushed into woodshed, and me chair mid have been broken by their wicked doings. An evil, adulterous woman be the's sister. 'Twas but a breakfast egg I did ask for, and they fowls laying every hour, too. An' she did have all me money!"

John Goddy did not follow a wise convention in all that he said. For whose wishes to find house-room, other than in his house, must fill his mouth with words of hate and scandal, so that he may enter at once into the good graces of his new entertainers.

When John Goddy had said all that could be said, which gave to Gertrude and Fred Brine all the known crimes, he accepted—knowing he had earned what he received—the food and drink that Grace Webber gave to him, and began to smile at Tommy, who though his beard a fine rope to pull.

A PLEASANT—and though he may change his habits, the breed is the same—will always, no less than his masters, want more money. Even in his way of life, turning the clods, desire for that which is not bread will come, and his longing too will go to that which cannot satisfy. Though he do breathe the pure air which blows in every country place, and eats wholesome victuals, he is not content.

Wasps and hornets are about—the poisoned desires—and they, too, no simple wish to embrace a pretty Jenny Waters or a Minnie Cuddy, or to forget his hard doings in his cups, but rather to taste the folly of stupid motion and costly sights that will fill no hungry belly, and become at the last a tiresome burden, a mere clatter of tongues of fire.

Henry Webber's one wish was to drive his family, every other night, to the dance-hall at Weyminster.

For nearly a year, Mr. Goddy talked. He liked the employment; each day he found something new to say about his daughter Gertrude, his recollections of her intimate doings might have filled a volume, and if that that he and of her and her husband was true, the sum of their sin must have been very great.

As soon as there were no new tales for Mr. Goddy to tell, and the waters of scandal were abated, Mr. Webber noticed that there was less money in his pocket than there used to be. Though Mr.

To Our Policyholders—

Our British Policyholders in particular will be interested to learn that the CROWN LIFE INSURANCE CO. has recently established a Branch Office in London.

Read what "THE POLICYHOLDER," the oldest and leading insurance journal in the world has to say about the CROWN LIFE INSURANCE CO.—in part as follows:—

A World-Wide Institution

The Crown Life is essentially modern; it was incorporated by Act of Parliament of the Dominion of Canada passed in June, 1906, and is a purely British institution. The head office is in Toronto, Canada, and the branch and agency organisation extends to Newfoundland, the West Indies, British Guiana, Cuba, India, the Straits Settlements, Egypt, Palestine, Shanghai, Hongkong, Hawaii, and the Philippine Islands, as well as to the United Kingdom and two of the United States immediately bordering Canada.

Low Premiums Good Dividends

For last year the former rate of bonus was continued, and it may be mentioned that the premiums for participating policies are very favourable, thus rendering the bonuses especially attractive. Perhaps this feature will be better appreciated when we mention that the Company's premiums for participating endowment assurances are lower than those charged by any other life office in the United Kingdom.

High Interest Record

When considering these valuation bases it should be kept in mind that Company earns a higher rate of interest than Life offices in this country—the figure for 1933, for example, being 5.81 per cent., which shows a very substantial margin over the valuation rate.

Unexcelled Management

But beyond the academic tests of an insurance company it is always wise to consider the personalities behind its organisation, and the Crown Life has a particularly strong board of directors, among whom the president only need be specially mentioned on this occasion. We refer to The Rt. Hon. Sir Robert L. Borden, P.C., G.C.M.G., K.C., D.C.L., LL.D., who is also Chairman of the Board of Barclay's Bank of Canada.

Luxurious Trends In New Coats

Colours For The Season

SPORTS HATS
London.
ALTHOUGH there is much black worn in Paris, and doubtless London will follow a similar fashion later on, English women like colour for the country. The favourite country colours at Doncaster were dark brown, grey, olive and bronze-green, navy, and to come extent a very dark purple.

The latter will probably make more appeal for town wear later on, though there were some smart little suits at Doncaster in a deep purple shaded with grey in a tweed stripe.

Another mixture was in brown and wine shades; a dark brown wool hopsack skirt looked attractive with a coat of soft flannel and a three-quarter blouse of a faded wine-shade worn with a fur and wool beret in the brown shade.

The younger generation showed a fondness for a wine and pale lilac mixture in a striped Autumn tweed, choosing neat double-breasted hip length coat and short slit or pleated skirts to wear with pale coloured shirts and the new three-cornered hats in velvet or duvetyn.

Another favourite mixture for the younger ones was two shades of brown with shirts, or sweaters in hunting-pink, and a dark felt hat trimmed with the bright pink.

Sports hats are important at the moment, and the beret has gained fresh laurels; even the smaller ones were back again yesterday. They are smarter with country suits than any other variety of hat, unless it be the tilted tricorne.

THE PLANTAGENET SPIKED CROWN
QUEENLY LOOKING
London.
ALTHOUGH the Plantagenet spiked crown, each spike of which may end in a pearl, was designed so many centuries before cruising and its packing problems came into being, a woman historical costume expert, Miss Edmondston, has hit on a way of making even this queenly headpiece lie flat.
The crown, cut out in brass which shines like gold, can be undone and opened out for packing; when it is worn the cut ends are clipped together by ordinary brass paper clips, which pass through holes punched in the metal.

COSSACK COLLAR VOGUE

BARREL SLEEVES AND SKUNK TRIMMING
London.
THE neckline is absorbing the designers of autumn and winter modes, who are making it the key to the new fashions. Many points of interest are concentrated in the collars and sleeves of autumn and winter coats, in which, as in the case of evening gowns, trimming is lavished at the top.
For this season is almost without a rival, although some models have the new high collar in the same fabric as the coat, with a circular ruching underneath the coat to match a similar effect on the sleeves.
Fur collars are larger and more decorative. In many cases they are in one with the sleeves and can be detached from the coat when the weather is too mild. Both smooth, long-haired furs and the tightly curled varieties are being used for these detachable styles, which are practical as well as novel.

Skunk Collar
A new cape collar is in skunk, and four sweeping strands form a cape effect at the back and also make the barrel sleeves. They are held at the throat by a large metal clasp.
An alternative treatment is that of the upstanding Cossack collar, which rises at the back and provides a becoming frame for the face. The square armholes are a new version of the raglan sleeve, which has been coming back to fashion.
Coat sleeves, when not tight-fitting, frequently follow the "barrel" trend in fur this autumn. Sometimes this takes the form of elongated cuffs; in other models the fur is carried almost to the shoulder.

Fur Turban To Be Worn This Season

HAIR IS TO BE CUT SHORT AGAIN

SWATHED EFFECT
London.
HAIR is to be cut short on the neck again and swathed neatly against the nape, and those who, like Lady Wimborne, do not care for curls at all will carry out this ultra-neat swathed effect all over their head.
Most amusing of all is the simulated curled fringe—a fashion set by Queen Alexandra—now returning to Mayfair.
Debutantes with high foreheads will conceal them this autumn with a delicate series of little curls arranged to look like a fringe.

HOSTESSES FROWN ON COCKTAILS

FRENCH WINES FAVOURED
Paris.
THE cocktail is dead in Paris. Last year it was considered indispensable at receptions, but to-day it is spurned by nearly all the leading hostesses as a "spurious concoction foreign to French taste."
One well-known hostess, announcing a reception in the newspapers, says: "Fortunately, there will be no cocktails. Instead, the guests will be invited to taste the best wines of France."

HAIR ORNAMENTS RETAIN VOGUE
QUEEN OF THE MAY AFFAIRS
Paris.
HAIR ornaments show no sign of disappearing. Antoine is still making them out of all sorts of things, from hair itself to gay and dazling bits of gold and silver, twisted leaves.
At one of the elaborate—or rather the more elaborate—balls during the Grande Semaine, there were quantities of flower wreaths for the hair (regular Queen of the May affairs, some of them), as well as pins and coronets, and diadems and tiaras, all of which vary only slightly from the main idea.

HAT-PINS AGAIN

HAT-PINS have returned to fashion again and are now included in jewellery ensembles.
A hat of black cloth, with a quaintly rolled brim, recently seen, is secured by a coral hat-pin. Earrings, rings, and bangles are also of coral.

The New "Cone" Silhouette

BERETS UNDERGO VARIATIONS

SO far much of the new millinery has a perky, not particularly tidy appearance. A fur turban may be worn much on the side of the head, and it is given a perky appearance by means of a big quill which is stuck through one side as a pencil might be stuck behind the ear.
Turbans of velvet have complicated draperies, and the folds may pull out and up suddenly at one side into a point. Three-cornered and four-cornered hats are by no means always simple. They may have twists and plaits of material, which are wound round and about them, or they may burst out into bows which have no special reason.

Berets undergo the same variations. They are flattened and pleated, and the edges are treated with all sorts of pinching and tucking to make them irregular. The result in many cases is something angular or even prickly.

BLACK TAFFETA

A BLACK taffeta suit, with a seven-eighth length coat, and a skirt which just clears the ground, was worn with a much-ruffled white organdie blouse and a wide white organdie hat with black taffeta crown. Other soft-transparent materials were seen in such colour combinations as pastel-blue with large hat, gloves and shoes of wine red; a dull sapphire-blue dress with bronze satin belt and large bronze straw hat.

Glasses As An Aid To Beauty

COMPLEXION TINTS

SPECTACLES which enhance the beauty of the eyes are among the fashionable novelties in eye-sight aids. These are really attractive spectacles in which the rims of the lenses follow the line of the eyebrows and the contour of the cheeks.

Both the rims and the holders of these spectacles are made in a number of different colours as well as in the practical tortoise-shell design. The frames can be chosen in the most becoming of complexion tints, in a transparent composition, and they are also made in other brighter colours for those who prefer an unusual effect in jade green or scarlet. Spectacles with frames so arranged that they can be folded into a case about the size of a dress watch are an interesting innovation in "eye" wear.

SLACK OVERCOATS

BROADENED shoulders were an excellent theme in moderation, but they are disqualified this season for the simple reason that travesty stepped in through indiscriminate adoption. They still exist, if only to a minor degree, with their original interpreter Schiaparelli—who wisely maintains them for certain types of tailored jackets, and, oddly enough, take on an entirely fresh sense of values in this designer's new "cone" silhouette sloping from a high indented neckline.

The line, as simple as it might sound, since an acute accent is given to the world "cone" through super-imposed capelets that billow out at the black like eaves. The idea is sometimes diverted to the fronts of frocks in single form and brings a modern note to the peplum trend.

A continued trend for slack overcoats, with wide "magyar" armholes is, but they usually away on a streamline. When sleeves become ensnared still wider-backed coats get belted across the front waistline beneath double-breasted, single centre front button fastenings or wide revers, which flop into easy line to muffle up on occasions. On these occasions they replace mufflers, with a giant hairpin instead of a button.

LAWRENCE TRIUMPHS

WINS HARBOUR RACE FROM HOLDER BY ONLY TWO YARDS

AMAZING RECORD THIS SEASON

DORIS HUNT RETAINS TITLE

W. Lawrence secured his fifth swimming title this season when he won the Colony's Open Harbour Race yesterday, beating Lionel Roza-Pereira, the holder, in one of the most thrilling struggles in the history of the event.

Led for more than three-quarters of the distance by Roza-Pereira, Lawrence, in an amazing spurt, passed the leader in the last few hundred yards to win by a mere two yards, in 27 mins. 54 secs.

Although very far off the record, which stands to the credit of C. Finch who made the crossing in 22 mins. 17 secs. in 1906, Lawrence's time, after considering the adverse currents which prevailed, was exceptionally good.

Clean Sweep

Lawrence has thus won every free style distance from 100 yards to the harbour swim, which is approximately a mile, this season. Roza-Pereira, who won last year's race, had held the title for four years in succession. The veteran swimmer, C. J. Cooke, who is well over 60 years of age, was well up with the leaders until the last quarter. He did extremely well to finish 6th, beating the Chinese champion, Shok Kam Pui. Cooke won the race in 1907 and again in 1928 after winning it for three years in succession. He holds the distinction with L. Roza-Pereira of having won the race four times.

Doris Hunt's Success

Miss Doris Hunt, who won last year in record time, was the first lady swimmer to touch the buoy, wall at Hong Kong, easily defeating the four Chinese entrants, including Miss Young Sui-king, the Chinese Olympic champion. Miss Hunt's time was 39 mins. 4 1/2 secs., an unimproved record of 26 mins. 30 secs.

At the conclusion of the race the prizes for the Colony championships were presented by Mrs. R. J. Hunt.

The results of the first 20, out of a field of 32, to finish were as follows:

1. W. Lawrence, 27 mins. 54 secs.
2. L. Roza-Pereira, 27 mins. 57.45 secs.
3. W. T. Campbell, 30 mins. 44.15 secs.
4. A. A. da Rosa, 31 mins.
5. Ng Sun-man, 32 mins. 22.25 secs.
6. C. J. Cooke, 32 mins. 53 secs.
7. Mak Wai-ming, 34 mins. 10.15 secs.
8. L. C. Sparrow, 34 mins. 25.15 secs.
9. Shok Kam-pui, 36 mins. 17.25 secs.
10. Brennan (H.M.S. Eagle)
11. J. Sousa
12. Mui Chi-chung
13. Miss D. Hunt, 39 mins. 5.15 secs.
14. W. Franks
15. Edward Roza
16. Miss Chan Yuen-king
17. Liow Ki-yeung
18. Miss Young Sui-king, 42 mins. 14.15 secs.
19. Miss Leung Yik-tsun
20. Miss Mok Yu-kwan

TENNIS TOURNAMENT AT L.R.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Kyall Triumph

Mr. and Mrs. Kyall won the lawn tennis mixed double tournament in aid of the general funds of the Ministering Children's League at the Ladies' Recreation Club yesterday.

Mr. Tollington and Mrs. Parkes were the runners-up. At the conclusion of play Mrs. R. M. Henderson presented the prizes, donated by Lady Southern, Mrs. MacGregor, Mrs. Henderson, and Mrs. Burnie.

The balls for the tournament were kindly given by Mr. D. H. Hazell.

CYCLISTS DO NOT RELISH NIGHT RIDING

Only two members of the Hong Kong Cycling Club left the Yaumatei Ferry Wharf for a run round the New Territories at 8 p.m. last night. They were E. Woody, the Treasurer, and E. Munns, the leader of last night's outing.

Friendly rivalry. W. Lawrence, who won the Open Harbour Race yesterday for the first time to record his fifth aquatic title win this season, with L. Roza-Pereira, who lost by 2 yards after leading most of the way. Roza-Pereira had won the event four years in succession.

COLONY GOLF TITLE

Marton Favoured To Hold Honour

TO-DAY'S GRUELLING TEST

O. E. C. Marton will to-day defend his title of Colony golf champion at Fanling. In last year's event, which was favoured with a much larger entry, Marton returned a 79 and a 75 to aggregate 154, which gave him a 4-stroke advantage over his nearest rival, F. D. Hunter.

Though the uncertainty of golf makes the result a very open one, Marton is favoured to win his second title. P. H. Scoones, T. A. Pearce, K. S. Robertson, and A. E. Lissaman should, however, be well in the running. P. Alleshbrook is looked on as the likely winner of the Visitor's Cup.

AQUATIC MEET POSTPONED

The combined aquatic meeting of the Chinese Bathing Club and the Chinese Y.M.C.A., which was scheduled to take place last night, was postponed until next Saturday, owing of the "Y" competitors being absent in Canton.

JUNIOR TEAM LOSE 100 PER CENT

UNIVERSITY DEFEAT BORDERERS

LINCOLNS BOW TO RADIO

YESTERDAY'S League Soccer results were not with their quota of surprises. The strong South China "B" eleven managed to avoid defeat at the hands of the Club by scoring the equaliser in the final minutes of the game, while the Navy spoiled South China's 100 per cent record in the Second Division by forcing them to a draw, and the University caused a mild sensation by trouncing the Borderers by 3 goals to 1. In the Third Division the Radio took the points from the Lincolns, the champions, by the odd goal in three.

The senior division games resulted very much as expected. The Navy collapsed against the champions after a promising opening, while the Saints were trounced by the East Lances after being on level terms at half-time.

The Lincolns discovered a new forward, but Kowloon put up a fine display before they lost by 3 goals to 2. The young Recreio team fought valiantly against the Police, but lost by the odd goal in three.

NAVY FAIL IN SECOND HALF

Borderers Annex Both Points

In an undistinguished, but fairly evenly contested encounter, in which styles and standards of play were at times in direct contrast, the Borderers annexed both points from the Navy after scoring two goals without reply.

The Navy held the balance of play in the opening period, both forwards and defence combining very well together. In the second stage, however, they lost their advantage and were definitely inferior, their inferiority arising mainly, after innumerable passes had failed to reach their intended destination, partly through ill-time kicking, but chiefly by virtue of the excellent positioning and intercepting movements of the Borderers.

Opening speedily, the Borderers carried play to the Navy end, but were repulsed and the Navy in turn, had an unavailing try at the other end. Fortey gave the Borderers the lead when, from a position facing his own goal, he netted from a waist-high pass. This was followed almost immediately by a great shot from Mathias, which struck the up-right with Pepper out of his goal.

Love and McGuire, both with long-range shots gave Smith an opportunity to make two brilliant saves, but at the other end Mathias gave Pepper no second chance after the latter had dropped a shot from Thomas.

Borderers—Smith; Mullane, Horbert, Davies, Padmore, Underwood; Mathias, Morris, Fortey, Jones and Thomas.

Navy—Popper, Ryecroft, West; Pyatt, McGuire, Love; Howells, Smith, Strong, Stanley and Wearmouth.

LINCOLNS DISCOVER NEW FORWARD

English Combines Well With Ridley

KOWLOON BEATEN

A keenly contested game at Kowloon yesterday, between the Kowloon Football Club and the Lincolns, resulted in a win for the soldiers by 3 goals to 2.

Kowloon unexpectedly had the service of Cord, their regular goalkeeper, who was not expected to be available. Lee, a second division player appeared on the right wing—and incidentally played a good game—but otherwise Kowloon were at full strength.

C. White opened the scoring for Kowloon in the early stages, snapping up an opportunity when the ball rebounded from Elliott's shot, and it was some considerable time before the Lincolns could equalise.

Malpas, however, eventually forced a corner on the right and from Baldry's flag kick, Ridley scored the equaliser. Within a minute the Lincolns took the lead through Higgins, who accepted a glorious through pass from Ridley to crash the ball into the roof of the net.

After the interval, the Lincolns had most of the play, and more goals should have been scored, but it was the left wing which enabled the soldiers to increase

Everest The Unconquered

"Perhaps—Some Day"

They retreated in good order over the plateau of Tibet, planning the next expedition. Their book, a worthy trophy, does not end. From the reader's point of view it would have been a pity if it had been cut short by success, its spirit entirely altered. Someone might even have claimed that Mount Everest had been "conquered."

The last hundred or so pages are full of facts and figures which will be useful to those who write the next chapter. The specialists analyse the technique and the achievements. They have quite got over the idea that the use of oxygen is unparagonable (one might just as well say that it is unfair to wear boots), but they doubt its efficacy compared with acclimatisation.

They are out to get to the top somehow, and they think they can.
Just a few feet above their limit there must be an easy route to the summit. Perhaps some day a man will climb those few feet and discover another obstacle of rock or weather. He will descend saying that the next climb must succeed.

QUICK ACTION with SAFETY is the KEYNOTE of 'ASPRO'

WHEN Headaches — Pain — High Temperatures, and numerous conditions of ill-health appear you want RELIEF, and Quick Relief, to get back to normal. This is where the use of 'ASPRO' is so valuable. It acts quickly and safely. Quickly because you get rapid relief—Safely because it is pure and conforms to the standards laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia, the guiding authority of the Medical Profession. Furthermore, 'ASPRO' relieves the numerous complaints listed below, because, after ingestion in the system, it is a powerful germicide, and is anti-pyretic, anti-typhoid and anti-

'ASPRO' for Headaches and Neuritis

167 Union Street,
Evesham, N.S.W.
Sirs,
I am an obstetric nurse, and my profession takes me on numerous journeys, which mean long hours in all kinds of weather, and at times I have felt that I could not carry on but thanks to the wonderful
'ASPRO' Tablets—which I am never without—I have had instant relief from Headaches and Neuritis.

I have nursed four generations, and have always advised my patients to try 'ASPRO'.
Tablets for complaints too numerous to mention, and all have been loud in their praise for the wonders which 'ASPRO' has done for them.

You may use this testimony in any way you wish, for I am very grateful for the relief which I had from
'ASPRO'

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) NURSE ELDER

Nerves were in a Terrible Way — 'ASPRO's Surprise

1 Garden Street,
Middle Brighton, S.E.
15/12/32

Dear Sirs,
Last week I had a terrible cold and my nerves
were in a terrible way. In fact I had to be taken home from the dentist. I went on for a couple of days in terrible pain with my head and back, due to my nerves, so I had to go to a doctor. On my way home I bought a packet of 'ASPRO'.
I took three and laid down, and to my surprise I woke up feeling lovely. Now if I feel a slight headache or a fly to my 'ASPRO'. I think 'ASPRO' should be in every home. I could mention a few more cases where 'ASPRO' has done good in my home. Once tried,
always used.

Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) Mrs. H. VIVIAN

SOCIAL EVENTS OF THE WEEK

Grand Military Tattoo Spectacle

MANILA CARNIVAL OPENS

Tait's Manila Carnival, which opens at Kowloon on Wednesday, will be one of the Colony's principal entertainment attractions this week, with its Merry-go-Round, Slide, Big Wheel, and Leaping Lena, but despite this counter-attraction, plenty of other entertainment is planned.

The usual Regal Club practice will be held at the Helena May Institute to-morrow at 5.30 p.m., while the weekly rehearsal of the Philharmonic Society's new production, "Morris England," is scheduled for the same hour. The 11 social gathering will be held at Lane, Crawford's restaurant from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., while at 8.15 p.m. the Rev. E. L. Allen will lecture at the Chinese Y.W.C.A.

On Tuesday, the St. Patrick's Society will hold their annual meeting in the Jacobean Room, Hong Kong Hotel, at 5.30 p.m., and the Girl's Guild will meet at St. Andrew's Church Hall at 5.30 p.m. A Ladies Whist drive will take place at the Sailor's and Soldiers' Home at 3.30 p.m. The China Light and Power Company's Recreation Club is holding a whist drive on the same day, at 8.45 p.m.

The high-light of the week, however, will be the Grand Military Tattoo, at Sookunpoo, on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. The display promises to be the most spectacular performance ever held in the Colony, and preparations are now underway to cope with the large crowds that are certain to attend.

Twenty-seven cases of cholera are reported in Calcutta.

The Searchlight Tattoo.

THE population of Hong Kong changes so rapidly that it is safe to say that those who saw the very successful Tattoo of six years ago are now a small proportion of the spectators who will be going to Sookumpoo on the last three days of this week. In the meantime the Aldershot Tattoo has by a series of brilliant shows established itself as a national institution. Not only does it provide a spectacle that is unique in the colour effects that can be obtained by the contrast of light and darkness, but the various military charities have found it a great stand-by. In Hong Kong the growth of the garrison has made the provision of recreation grounds quite inadequate for the troops stationed here; and the proceeds will, after grants to local charities, be largely devoted to securing more accommodation for military sports and games.

Major J. Griffin, D.S.O., is in charge of production, and has arranged a programme that lacks nothing in variety. The massed bands and massed drums will be seconded by massed singing in the Grand Finale, of "Land of Hope and Glory" and "Abide with me." Indian Dancing is to be followed by a Physical Training Display and a Chinese Display, which will be something that could not be seen at Aldershot. It has been arranged by Mr. Li Chor Chi, and will be put on by the Lam Cho Athletic Society. The Lion is the symbol of Good Luck, and two lions are to gambol fantastically to the accompaniment of gong and drum in the most approved and orthodox style to be seen at the festivals of the interior Provinces.

The Indian battalions and police are contributing three characteristic dances typical of the Provinces to which they belong. The Punjabi Mussulmen will give their Festival Dance, "The Lhudi." The Sikhs will contribute both song and dance in a rhythm which is their own speciality; and the warriors of the North-West Frontier will show the War Dance of the Hindu Kush, "The Khattag."

The battle-piece, which is an essential item of a Tattoo, will be the "Defence of Rorke's Drift," once a household word in England, now like all the other conflicts of the nineteenth century so much overshadowed by the size of our improved style of massacre that it suggests rather the adventures of a sergeant's patrol than an engagement for war correspondents to get excited about. For that reason it is particularly convenient for its present purpose; — a heroic feat of defence in a small area.

Aerial reconnaissance, field telegraphs, and motor cars have made the condition of the Zulu campaign appear to belong to a different stage of civilisation, though it is only three months since the last survivor of the recipients of the "V.C." for Rorke's Drift died at Greenwich Hospital. It was the old story of "sending a boy to do a man's job." — In other words, underestimating the enemy, — that was adopted through all the Victorian campaign. The main force had advanced in a leisurely way into the mountains, and in the process of shifting camp, partly through the failure of orders to reach their destination, half of the force was at the new camp when the other half had not left the old camp, when the divided forces were overwhelmed piecemeal at Isandlwana by a large force which had advanced without being detected by the scouts (if any). The Zulus then hurried on to invade Natal. A small force had been left on communications at a wayside store at the ford (drift) of the boundary river, and their stubborn defence was enough to cause the invading hordes to halt and lose a great deal of valuable time. Eventually the inevitable relief force came up from Durban and crushed the Zulu army in the big battle of Ulundi. This removed a great menace both from Natal and from the Orange Free State, and Zululand in a few years became a prosperous Protectorate, though the memories of the old murderous expeditions are still cherished. Under their greatest Chief, Tshaka, it is estimated that they slaughtered a million and a half tribesmen of other African tribes; and however admirable their courage and discipline may have been, it was not consistent with civilisation.

In a lighter vein will be the appearance of the Loch Ness monster, which will be conducted on to the arena by the 12th Company, R.A.S.C.; and this is to be followed by a military fantasy by the 1st Battalion of the Lincolnshires, who will revive the old tactics of the solid square immortalised at Waterloo, but not in too serious a representation. If we recall that the beating of the Tattoo itself was instituted by the great Marlborough; and that another item will be a contrast between the battle drill of the Crimea with that of the current year; our readers will recognise that they are being offered a deep and vivid glance into history under the most attractive conditions.

NOT only is Mr. W. J. Anderson Miller, L.R.A.M., to be congratulated on the performance of "The Hongkong Singers" at the Helena May Institute on Thursday afternoon, but Hongkong itself; the hall was crowded to the top of the stairs, and it was obvious that the audience would have willingly called for encores without end. The concert party both in attack and in balance gave no opening for criticism, and the programme was of the greatest interest. Perhaps "may-have-beens" are somewhat futile, but the dates of some of the pieces do suggest that we were able to hear some of the airs that Shakespeare listened to. If we remember that between 1695 and 1612 he was writing his most famous plays, into many of which he introduced such songs as Arle's "Where the bee sucks there he lies," it is not likely that he neglected to hear the songs that Thomas Morley, Francis Pilkington, John Dowland, John Farmer, and Orlando Gibbons were composing during the same years. Lt. Colonel Kuhne, D.S.O. did not give us the air "Go from my window" by William Byrd, whose fame stands higher than any of those composers; but we shall no doubt have something of his later on. One of the tragedies of English history is the tragedy of her music. The renaissance came to England just a century after it started in Italy, but it followed a similar course. At once bound it seemed to reach the limits of the various arts as far as the instruments available permitted, and it might have been expected that they would evolve along their natural channels. Instead of that they were crushed beneath the prohibitions of the later Puritanism; and there is no great figure in English music between Purcell and Elgar. It has even been said and accepted as a fact that the English had no folk-songs. There is no ground to suppose that England was behind Scotland in song, and Percy or Sir Walter Scott had no difficulty in recovering quite a large collection. There is still a wide variety of music of the time of Henry VIII that has not yet found the light of the concert after its long quiescence in forgotten chests, mostly in cathedral crypts.

THE AIR RACE

It seems absurd to pass comments on the Passing Hour, without reference to the marvellous achievement of Scott and his companion in travelling from Mildenhall to Melbourne in an hour less than three days. But what is there to say? The bald statement of the fact enough to upset all manner of old established things. Since the Blériot flight across the twenty-one miles of the English Channel the course of aerial development (Continued on Page 17).

BRITISH DESIGNER'S AIR TRIUMPH

"COMET" TYPE OPEN NEW POSSIBILITIES

SPEED WITH ENDURANCE

(By Our Aviation Correspondent.)

IT is a coincidence that in every respect to the restrictions of the ordinary commercial airworthiness regulations, this is a great tribute to British designers. The aircraft were expected to attain a speed of about 250 miles an hour. Many foreign machines are unable to touch this speed, and even then cannot obtain anything like the range without "overloading" and breaking the airworthiness regulations.

The "Comet" machines were built in record time. They took the air within approximately nine months of the first drawings being produced. This is an illustration of what British manufacturers can do, if given a free hand.

The "Comets" have a cruising speed in excess of the majority of British warplanes. Some of the latest bombing machines supplied to the Royal Air Force have been no fewer than seven years maturing from the drawing-board stage.

There are many features incorporated in these racing aircraft which are unknown to standard Service craft, such as "flaps" to reduce landing speed and variable pitch propellers that give maximum "take off" efficiency coupled with high speed in the air.

Hong Kong Personalities

HERR H. GIPPERICH

This is the thirteenth of the exclusive "Sunday Herald" series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konye, the talented Hungarian artist.

FEW people who have read Peter Fleming's latest novel, "One's Company," a tale with a Far Eastern theme, know that Herr H. Gipperich, Consul for Germany in Hong Kong, is one of the characters in the story. Although concealed in fictional garb, few could fail to tear away the veil if they had been apprised of the fact.

Herr Gipperich is very reticent regarding the adventures that have been his lot while in the service of the Reich Foreign Office, but he recalls on occasion his experience in Manchuria that led to his appearance in fictional print. The event occurred only last year, when he was returning from Germany to Hong Kong via Siberia, with his family, to take up his present duties.

The train on which he was travelling was wrecked by bandits, and since he and his family and Mr. Peter Fleming were the only European passengers, the incident held great anxiety for him. The book, however, must be read if one is to glean further details, for Herr Gipperich is a modest man. He talks only vaguely of the trying incidents that have been his lot in such places as Tsingtau and Harbin. At the latter place, in 1931, he experienced two months of the Sino-Japanese incident.

Herr Gipperich, who was born in Shanghai and educated in Germany, was in business in China until early in 1914, when he decided (Continued on Page 11.)

Migrant Birds.

A VISIT was paid to the Lam Tsim Valley on Saturday 20, and a walk was made along the banks of the main stream. The object was to note what migrant birds had returned from the north. Of summer migrants still with us we noticed a pair of Drongos and both Little Egrets and a single Pond Heron either a Pukien Pond Heron or a young Chinese Pond Heron. Of winter migrants we saw but few smelt. The three common warblers were seen, namely several Striped-eyes (a pied species with a black streak across the face through the eye), one White-faced (a pied species with white cheeks but no black streak) and an abundance of Eastern Grey (slender birds, grey above, white and yellow below). Not a single pipit was seen though both Richard's and the Eastern Tree Pipit should be with us now. Perhaps they were there but were not seen owing to the abundance of long and uncut paddy providing cover. A beginning had just been made of the cutting and threshing of the second crop of rice and it is interesting to note that a friend saw a start being made three days earlier in the Un Long district.

The migrants seen included a number of that jolly little flycatcher, the Japanese Robin Flycatcher, a dusky or olive brown above, white below with an orange wash or even bright orange chestnut on the breast. This species can be easily identified by its habits. A solitary bird will perch on the top-most twig of a small bush where it will remain for a few moments or minutes unhesitatingly flicking its tail up and down. Then it may fly down to the ground capturing an insect and with it fly off in a rapid erratic flight to another high-top some short distance away. One migrant hawk was seen; it may have been a Kestrel but it appeared too dark. Kestrels, Sparrow-hawks and Buzzards all frequent this district in the winter months.

The rarest bird seen was a single specimen of the Black-winged Cuckoo Shrike; our only other record of this bird was on March 3rd of this year in the same district. La Touche writes of this bird "appears to be universally distributed in China during the hot weather." Vaughan and Jones state that it is common on the West River and add that it places its nest "on the extremity of a slender horizontal bough." This summer a friend discovered a nest of this species in the Colony and young birds were reared successfully, an interesting addition to our list of the nesting birds of the Colony. The slender build of this cuckoo-like shrike, its dark grey upperparts, black wings and tail, and its habit of keeping to tree-like an oriole make identification easy. Hibiscus abelmoschus.

EDUCATION BOARD MEETING

Exchange Of Teachers Considered

The 33rd meeting of the Board of Education was held on Friday afternoon at 4.15 p.m. The members present were:—Director of Education, Mr. G. R. Sayer, B.A., Chairman; Senior Inspector of English Schools, Mr. A. R. Sutherland, I.S.O.—M.A.; Senior Inspector of Vernacular Schools, Mr. Y. P. Law, B.A.; Mr. A. C. Arculli; Mr. L. D'Almeida e Castro, Jr.; Sir W. W. Hornell, Kt., C.I.E., M.A., LL.D.; Hon. Mr. S. W. Tao, O.B.E., LL.D.; and Mr. B. Wylie. The Board considered a general scheme for the inauguration of a system of Technical Education as outlined in the Report dated September 1934 of the Principal, Junior Technical School, but it was decided to adjourn the matter for further consideration.

A Scheme for instituting a temporary exchange of European Teacher between those employed in the United Kingdom and in the Colonial Dependencies was also considered.

The most interesting botanical find was an abundance of Hibiscus abelmoschus in fruit enabling us to collect a quantity of seeds. (This species was incorrectly named Abutilon indicum in Notes 115). It is an annual or biennial Hibiscus growing to a height of 6 feet and bearing flowers four inches in diameter pure bright sulphur-yellow with a small crimson or crimson-purple eye. This species is well worth cultivating in the Colony. In tropical countries this species is cultivated for its flowers and for its musk-scented seeds which are sometimes used medicinally.

CORRESPONDENCE

Soviet Plan For China Railway

(To the Editor, the "Sunday Herald.") Sir,—In the general rejoicing over the prospect of settling things by the sale of the C.E.R., there is a point which does not seem to have been considered. Nor does there seem to be any reason why the public should not have information on the subject.

Something like fifteen or twenty years since the "Far Eastern Review" brought out the fact about the proposed bicontinental railway, the Western section was being built under Russian auspices, and, if memory is correct, it was to reach from Bagdad through Kashgar to northwest China. The Eastern section was being built under Chinese auspices, with Western capital, connecting with the Russian section in Kansu, and running through the heart of China to the sea. Such a railway will dominate the East, and will be free from the incubus of ice-bound ports, which hampers the C.E.R. for a large part of the year.

This monumental work, so far as the China section, the Lunghai, is concerned, is going forward. In spite of the fact that the Lunghai at present makes no important connections, and has no through traffic, a beautiful ice-free harbour is being constructed at Haichow, evidently looking to a big future.

As for the Russian section, there have been reports indicating that the Soviet are going forward with the original project. And they seem to have special concern with the Panchen Lama, and affairs in Turkestan and Tibet, apparently aiming to counter British diplomacy there.

The plain inference would seem to be that the Soviet are selling the C. E. R. in order to focus their efforts on this bicontinental railway.

I think, Sir, some of your readers will be interested.

HUGH W. WHITE.
Yencheng, Ku, Oct. 12, 1934.

The Tattoo

(To the Editor, "Sunday Herald") Sir,—I wish to express my strong disagreement with the choice of a time for the forthcoming Tattoo.

It is difficult to imagine any time less suitable for such a display of military methods and for the raising of the civilian population to admiration of things martial than the month in which it has been agreed to commemorate the deaths and sufferings of so many who in the last war offered their lives to end war. Those were the words used to induce a peace-loving people to undergo and inflict sufferings such as the human race has never collectively known before, and which it cannot face again and survive with the civilisation which makes life worth living.

It is not too much to say that the choice of this time, which to as many as remember the last war is not the occasion of a holiday like the rest, will seem to many like a pointed mockery of the ideals to which so many sacrificed so much, and a breach of faith more cynical than any of those who joined up in 1914 could have imagined. Even the most confirmed militarist would be sorry to think that the soldiers of the present or the civilian population on whom they must draw as before would interpret this as an earnest of how future promises to volunteers will be honoured.

It is possible that we have misconstrued the choice of the date for these events, and that the dates were selected with a view rather to preparing the public mind for due observance of the solemnity of Armistice Day rather than for its desecration.

The leaflet which advises our attendance at the Tattoo informs us that one of its objects is to show the civilian population modern military machinery in operation; and it may be that the intention is to warn us against its use rather than to inspire fervour. If that is true, it is regrettable that it was not made plainer; but we are afraid that this interpretation is over-generous. Had such been the intention, it is probably not beyond the scope of a Tattoo to show a lifelike picture of a military hospital the day after a bombardment, or the picture of the position of the defeated party at the end of an abortive attack, with a parade of

DRIVING WITHOUT LICENSE

DODGEM MANIA TO START AGAIN

Tait's Show Is Opening With Additional Attractions

TARZAN AND HIS SNAKES

There is one place in the East where you can drive without a licence, where there are no traffic cops to pull you up and demand you can break all the rules of the road to your heart's content. "Where," you will ask, "is this Mania Carnival all this is possible on the greatest riding device ever brought to the East—the Dodgem; 20 small cars each under their own control, of their own drivers.

These cars can be driven around over a fine, smooth, flat surface 50 by 80 feet, each car having a reverse gear so one can drive either forwards or backwards. "Don't they ever bump each other?" you will naturally ask. They certainly do, and what a bump you get sometimes! But that does not matter, it is part of the fun.

Each car is surrounded by a big rubber buffer, so one need not get frightened of a "smash up". That is impossible. You just bump and then slide off to bump someone else. The skilful driver will dodge 'em. It is wonderfully good sport, and what makes the ride so popular is that it is the only riding device that is operated by the individual himself.

Leaping Lena

Other riding devices that will be with the Carnival this season are the Big Wheel, a Slide, Merry-go-Round, and a new ride called the Leaping Lena.

Good side shows, all new to Hong Kong, include the motor-drome in which a motor-cyclist races a baby motor car around the walls—a hilarious exhibition; the ever popular Hawaiian Hula dancers; the great Aboulon with his magic show, living statues, vaudeville show; Tarzan, the ape man, who performs with snakes, and various other freaks and side shows which go to make up the Carnival.

They open their Hong Kong season on Wednesday on the ground opposite the Peninsula Hotel Kowloon.

It is hoped that before the end of their season here the very latest amusement device which Mr. Tait has just bought from the Chicago Exhibition will arrive. This is a captive-flying machine, on which one can actually learn to fly.

The big free act for this year's carnival is the World's champion high diver Peejay Riggs and his lady partner. This will be something entirely new for Hong Kong audiences, and, being of an aquatic nature, should prove a big drawing card. For this performance no charge is made except the usual gate admission of 20 cents and 10 cents for children.

COLONY'S FINANCE ON UP GRADE

Credit Balance Better At End of July

Financial returns just issued show that the Colony's credit balance on July 31 was $14,984,385, compared with $14,778,313 at the end of June.

Revenue for July totalled $2,012,101, against $2,940,287 in the same month last year, whilst for the period from January to July inclusive the total was $18,084,243, against $21,122,083 last year. Expenditure during July was $2,707,028, against $2,493,888 last year, whilst for the seven months the respective figures were $18,928,483 and $17,674,284.

There is one more aspect which must be kept in mind. We are told to-day we do not see very many signs of the Tattoo is designed to raise money for military and local charities. We trust that the public will remember that it is shortly to be followed by Poppy Day when, in addition to the solemn remembrance of those who fell for an ideal, which their successors show every sign of betraying handsly, we shall subscribe

Examples From Christ's Life

(By the Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan.)

DURING the last four weeks the articles in this column have been on Loyalty, Self-sacrifice, Patience and courage, marks which we should bear in our lives and characters, in our everyday life, and more especially if we profess to follow in the footsteps of Christ our Lord.

As events of topical interest will be occurring during the coming few weeks on which articles will appear, this series is being closed to-day, with just two more: Generosity and Humility.

The former might have been termed "Charity," which in its original meaning is one of the richest and most beautiful words in our language. Somehow it has been narrowed down, until to-day it is a term of coldness, whereas generosity is something warm and comprehensive. The moment you speak of a man as generous you have a large and exalted idea of his life and thought.

There was no mark more characteristic of the life of Christ than this. He was the wisest of men in His thought and life, ask men to follow in His steps. Even His most ardent opponents never dared to bring against Him any of the faults and follies of ordinary humanity, because they could find none.

What Humility Is. What then is humility? It is just having a modest estimate of one's self. It is the easiest thing in the world to find someone else inferior to ourselves in brains, ability, and perhaps in religious devotion. That is what the Pharisee did in the parable "I thank God," he said, "that I am not like other men." I pay my debts, I do this and that, I am rather a fine fellow, but it does not cut much ice, and is pretty cheap. When we make comparisons we always pick our strong points and compare them with the weak points of others.

What we must do, is to have proper standards, and not contrast ourselves with smaller people. When we watch our characters with the great ones of history we very soon find our right places. Compare our life with that of Christ, and you will see how poor and faulty it is.

The mountains of England, when they look down on the lesser hills, might think themselves to be the greatest in the world, but put them against the Alps and they sink into insignificance. It depends entirely upon the standard. Many men pride themselves on the thought that they are self-made men. There is no such thing. They forget all that had to be done to make it possible to achieve what they did. We take far too many things to ourselves that ought to be credited to others.

Our job is to think less of what we are, and more of what we ought to be.

After all, we are merely stewards—what we have we are holding in trust. Our gifts and our talents will be wasted if we use them only for ourselves. And nothing awakens generosity in others so much as the generosity that we show to them. Leonardo da Vinci had an enemy whom he despised in one of his pictures—the Last Supper. When he tried to paint the face of Christ he could not. The vindictiveness in his life crippled his handiwork, so he washed it out, forgave his enemy, came back and finished the picture. So generosity is good for ourselves.

The most difficult mark of all is Humility, and yet it is definitely a virtue. In pre-Christian days you could not offer a man a greater insult than to say that he was humble. It was considered the quality of a slave. Christ changed all that. There was no arrogance about His life. He always appeared in the garb of a servant. On the night before He died He washed His disciples' feet. There is no finer illustration of His humility than the Cross. It was a symbol of shame and degradation, yet He lifted it to be the symbol of our Faith.

As we look around the world to-day we do not see very many signs of it. We are not a very humble people. We are rather included in conversation to bring out or better qualities, what we do, and what we have done. Humility on the other hand teaches us to be out or better qualities, what we do, and what we have done. Humility on the other hand teaches us to be out or better qualities, what we do, and what we have done. Humility on the other hand teaches us to be out or better qualities, what we do, and what we have done.

ing, fawning attitude. Dickens made that kind of humility ridiculous and contemptible, those people who come to you washing their hands with invisible soap, and cringing before you. You know perfectly well that that is not genuine humility. There was nothing cringing or fawning about Christ, and He was the most humble soul who has ever lived.

Neither is it self-deprecation, for that is a species of pride. It is false humility. There is a story of a Greek philosopher who went about in rags, in order to draw attention to his humility. Someone said that you could see the pride peering out of the very holes of his clothing.

Neither is it based on sin and guilt. That is never the origin of humility. Christ was humble, but there was not in His life the least consciousness of guilt. Alone of all men born of woman, His life was without spot or stain of sin. He was in all points tempted as we are, but He never fell for one instant. That was the glory of that perfect life, and why He dares to ask men to follow in His steps. Even His most ardent opponents never dared to bring against Him any of the faults and follies of ordinary humanity, because they could find none.

What Humility Is. What then is humility? It is just having a modest estimate of one's self. It is the easiest thing in the world to find someone else inferior to ourselves in brains, ability, and perhaps in religious devotion. That is what the Pharisee did in the parable "I thank God," he said, "that I am not like other men." I pay my debts, I do this and that, I am rather a fine fellow, but it does not cut much ice, and is pretty cheap. ## BLIND GIRLS' PICNIC

50 Enjoy Shek O Outing

Favoured with "delightful weather," 17 motor-cars laden with happy hearts left the Blind Home at Pokfulam at 2.30 p.m. yesterday for Shek O Beach, the occasion being the annual picnic arranged by the Kowloon Tong branch of the V.D.M.A.

Some 50 blind girls were conducted to the beach by willing helpers, and while tea and refreshments were served to some, other paddled in the fresh air and sunshine. The return journey was made at 5 p.m. via Shaikwan, the Blind Home being reached at 5 p.m., where a special luncheon awaited the girls.

The organisers wish to thank all those who contributed to the success of the picnic by donations and the loan of their motor-cars.

Tattoo Publicity

[To the Editor, the "Sunday Herald."] Sir,—We, as two men who have served in the British Army, beg to call to your notice the very objectionable form of publicity adopted by the Army Authorities for the forthcoming Tattoo.

There were four men in the Hong Kong Hotel to-night who were obviously humiliated by the roles which they have been compelled to adopt.

We would like to suggest that British soldiers should not be put forward in a cheap guise better adopted to coolies.

The Officials concerned can easily advertise the Tattoo without making clowns of His Majesty's soldiers.

STEVEN.

Nullah Outrage

[To the Editor, the "Sunday Herald."] Sir,—I beg to support "Clement's" excellent letter which appeared in your columns last week, and the contents therein.

A petition for reprieve is now in circulation, but like myself, I think many may refuse to sign it on the ground that it is unnecessary, for the simple reason that the Authority is not likely to disregard the strong recommendation for mercy made by the special jury, which special jury, if I may point out, was composed of five Europeans and two Chinese. A recommendation for mercy from such a body, cannot be said to have been prompted by reason of racial feeling nor either by reason that any one or more of the body were conscientious objectors, as pointed out in Clement's letter.

The only reasonable conclusion, therefore, is that the Jury must have grounds for their recommendation other than those above mentioned. It may be that, though they were not satisfied with the evidence on the question of drunkenness from a legal point of view, they felt that the prisoner was really drunk, or it may be that, though the defence put up no plea of insanity, as doctors are most reluctant to so certify, the prisoner was really mad, or for any other equally reasonable ground. To disregard this strong recommendation by the special jury, will in future deter any jury from recommending for mercy.

On the ground that the position is superfluous and a waste of time and energy I refused to sign it but I do hope most sincerely that a reprieve will be granted, regardless of the petition.

ST. ANDREW'S WIN CAER CLARK CUP HOCKEY GAME

Recreio Forwards
Miss Chances

WINNERS' HALF-BACK TRIO
STRENGTH OF TEAM

Showing better all-round play and harder hitting, the St. Andrew's Club Ladies defeated the Club de Recreio Ladies by 3 goals to 1 in their first Caer Clark Cup hockey encounter on the Marina ground yesterday.

Both forward lines were erratic in their shooting and many opportunities were lost through lack of direction.

The Saints led by the old goal in three at half-time, Miss M. Woolley scoring both goals for the Saints, and Miss C. Botelho for Recreio. Miss P. Gittins placed the Saints further ahead early in the second half.

Both goalkeepers were thoroughly tested in the first half, Mrs. Rose saving the Saints twice in the first half with her well-timed kicks. Her opposite number, Miss S. Roza, also cleared well, but would do well to use her feet in preference to her stick in tight corners.

The Saints forwards combined well, Miss G. Krouskaya, the new inside-right, impressing.

Miss E. Xavier, at centre-half for the Recreio, was the outstanding player in her team. Miss Basto worked very hard at full-back, but lacked speed. Miss Botelho was the most aggressive of the forwards, playing well for a second team player.

The Saints half-back line was the strength of the team, Miss J. Wong, playing her usual brilliant game, was ably supported by Miss I. Woolley and Mrs. Berrux. The backs, Miss G. White and Miss E. Landolt, were hard hitters, although the former was prone to mis-hit on occasion.

Miss E. Rozario was at left-half in place of Mrs. Alouso in the Recreio side, the latter being unable to play.

St. Andrew's Ladies—Mrs. R. Rose, Misses C. White, E. Landolt, I. Woolley, J. Wong, Mrs. Berrux, Misses F. Wong, G. Krouskaya, P. Gittins and M. Churn.

Recreio Ladies—Misses G. Roza, M. Basto, C. Osmund, L. Silva-Netto, E. Xavier, E. Rozario, M. Remedios, A. Alves, C. Silva, B. Remedios and C. Botelho.

After Big Game

Whenever Captain Nimrod tore to hunt big game in Chotapore

Until his sorrows soothed by this
He fell into a dream of bliss.

The Elephant and Crocodile
Were after him with happy smiles.

The Lion and the Kangaroo
Looked up and disappeared from view.

Nine miles away (or maybe ten)
A tiger, cooing in his den.

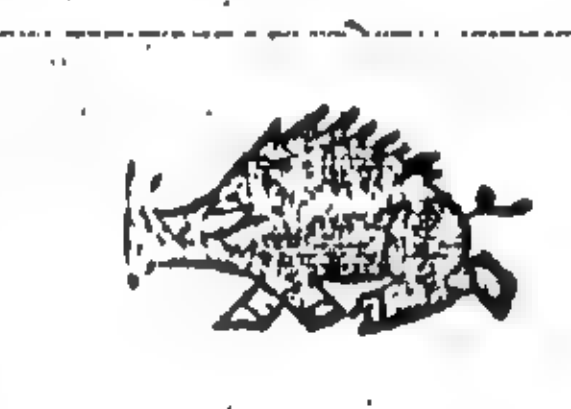

The Boa Constrictor slithered by
With untold you-rings in his eyes.

The Man and the Shark
Had behind Cactus Trees in funk.

Up held his nose and sniffed a rare
And subtle fragrance in the air.

Nor did the Wart Hog linger long
To join that captivated throng.

And so the Captain, clever rascal,
Sought solace in Willis Gold Flake.

Quicker than hares by reflex are trapped in
The Tiger started for the Captain!

Moral: The most sought-after fellows
Are smokers of Willis Gold Flake!

Local Soccer Surprises

Tuley, the East Lanes left-winger, had to leave the field with knee trouble, and the soldiers finished the game with ten men. Despite this handicap, they netted a third goal through Lawton, and scored the fourth in the closing stages.

East Lanes: Oxford, Swain, Gorman; Power, Smith, North, O'Donnell, Horner, Lawton, Elliott and Tuley. St. Joseph's: Wong, Souza, Leonard, Victor, Costa, Elmer, Ward, Chan, Rocha, Fernandez and Rahman.

Second Division

UNIVERSITY CAUSE SURPRISE

Ten Borderers Lose

A clean and fast game was witnessed in the match between the Borderers and the University, the latter unexpectedly winning by 3 goals to 1.

A few minutes from the start Simmonds, the Borderers inside-right, had to retire with an injury and the Borderers completed the game with only 10 men.

The University played a fast and clever game and thoroughly deserved their victory. Blake was in brilliant form on the left wing and was a thorn in the side of the Borderers' defence. Tan and Yong played a great game on the right wing, and the University's defence cleared well up the field.

The Borderers fought hard all the game but they were badly handicapped with a depleted side. Addison, McGeorge and Solis were their most outstanding forwards.

After the interval the University became very aggressive and soon were in the lead. Reed scoring with a fine solo effort. Tan increased the lead when he received an accurate centre from Blake. The Borderers reduced the lead, when Addison scored with a well-placed free kick from just outside the penalty area.

The University made sure of victory, when Yong followed up a partial clearance by Williams from a shot from Goon.

LINCOLNS ROUT CLUB JUNIORS

Three Goals After Interval

On the Chatham Road ground yesterday the Club proved no match for the Lincolns and were easily defeated by four goals to nil. The opening goal was not registered until the game had been in progress for almost 30 minutes. Evans finally defeating Payne with a shot which struck the upright before entering the net.

Five minutes after the interval the Lincolns went further ahead, when Setters accepted a high pass from Mathews and headed the ball into the net. Toyne scored a similar goal a few minutes later, the pass also coming from Mathews. In the last minutes of the game, McGuinness scored the fourth goal with a well placed drive.

ENGINEERS WIN BY PENALTY

But Were Better Than That

The Engineers were far too heavy for the Young Indians on the Club ground yesterday and had no great difficulty in winning by 2 goals to 1.

The first goal of the match, by Dorby, was a gift for the Engineers. A M. Omar equalised for the Indians soon after the commencement of the second half, when he took the ball down his wing and ran in to beat Sellek with a fast ground shot.

The Engineers continued to attack, and during a melee in front of the goal Hussin was penalised. Howlett took the spot kick, and gave Curreen no earthly chance.

SOUTH CHINA LOSE 100 PER CENT.

Navy's Penalty Equaliser

South China surprisingly lost their 100 per cent. record in their encounter with the Navy at Caroline Hill yesterday, being forced to share six goals.

In the first half, South China undoubtedly had the better of the play, but in the later stages the Navy, on the ascendancy, held a definite advantage.

Glass gave the Navy an early goal, but Tse Shu-yul equalised shortly afterwards and South China went ahead from a brilliant shot from Chan Tak-fat. Hui Yu-kwong netted the third goal, but Glass reduced the lead in the following minute.

In the second half Showbrook scored the equaliser from a penalty.

ARTILLERY BEAT ATHLETIC

Second Half Superiority

At the Valley yesterday, after an even first half, the Artillery easily defeated the Athletic by 4 goals to 1.

Early in the game the Artillery were in the lead. Leach ran up the centre and shot for goal and Li Kwok Ki fisted out for Butterfield to place the ball into the net.

Just before half time the Athletic drew level, Tang Kwong-shun centring for Tang Kwong-wing to score with a well-placed drive.

After the interval the Gunners completely outclassed their opponents and the play was all in the Chinese half of the field. Leach placed the Artillery in the lead with a good goal after a solo run up the centre, and soon the lead was further increased by Harman. A few minutes before time, Rivers cut in and netted the fourth and last goal.

KOWLOON SWAMPED BY EAST LANCS

Scrappy Encounter

A scrappy and one-sided game was seen between Kowloon and the East Lanes Rgt. the latter winning by 5 goals to nil.

The opening goal was registered soon after the kick off, the ball being centred from the right wing for Griffin to net from close range. After a bout of pressure the East Lanes became two goals up. Thorp heading in from a corner.

The credit for the third goal went to Botting, who made a good solo run up the centre. McNider came out to tackle him, but could only push the ball away from Botting to Thorp who was presented with an empty goal.

In the second half, after a long spell of pressure in which the East Lanes did everything but score, Griffin scored a lovely goal with his head. Ridings scored the fifth and last goal after, McNider had only partially cleared a shot from Swain.

Third Division

Lincolns Surprised By Radio

The Radio surprised the Lincolns at the Valley yesterday defeating them by 2 goals to 1.

All the goals were scored in the first half of the game, the scores being Omar (2) for the Radio, while Dudley scored the Lincolns' only goal.

After the interval the Lincolns missed an excellent opportunity of sharing the points when they failed to convert a penalty.

Ordnance Swamped By East Lanes

At Chatham Road yesterday the East Lanes had no difficulty in overcoming a weakened R.A.O.C. eleven by 8 goals to 1.

Crossley, and Sandford were in great form for the winners, each bagging three goals, while Garwood and Pritchard obtained the others.

Routledge netted the R.A.O.C. solitary point, and with Parker, were the only two of the loser's forwards to impress.

Recreio Bow To Ten Men By 2 To 1

A well contested game resulted in a victory for the Police by 2 goals to 1 over the Recreio.

After much pressure, F. Santos scored and netted with a well placed drive. Recovering quickly, the Police equalised through Ohau Chiu, from a corner by Cheung Kam.

Early in the game the Police played with ten men, Pau Kwai-choi being off the field with ankle trouble.

SECOND SCOUT RALLY GREAT SUCCESS

Over 260 Present For Competitions

PRINCE OF WALES BANNER

The second Boy Scout Rally for the Prince of Wales Banner was held at St. Andrews Church grounds yesterday afternoon. The rally was the biggest that has been held in the Colony for a considerable time, 10 troops from Hong Kong and Kowloon being in attendance, making a total number of over 260.

Scout Master R. Dornier, the acting Commissioner, was in charge, while Mr. S. Mitchell was the chief examiner. The Rev. N. V. Halward, the Chief Commissioner of the Boys Scouts' Association, was unable to attend as he is in hospital.

The following were the competitions held: Whipping the end of a rope; Making a fire and boiling a pint of water; Morse Signalling; Kina gano; and a Troop competition. The troop competition saw teams of 12 scouts building a lean-to shelter, flag-staff, and tripod entirely out of scout-staves. At the end each team had to fly a flag from its flag staff.

The results of the afternoon's events were reported to be very satisfactory, but will not be available for a day or two.

The final Rally, which will be held on December 1 at Sai Wan, will decide the winner of the banner.

The troops present were:—1st. Hong Kong Sea Scout; 2nd. H.K.; 7th. H.K.; 10th. H.K.; 18th. H.K.; 15th. H.K.; 1st. Kowloon; 5th. Kowloon; 6th. Kowloon and 11th. Kowloon.

MILITARY CHARITY TOMBOLA

Mr. Kaye Wins Biggest Prize This Season

The biggest win since the commencement of the military charity tombola, at the Garrison Lecture Hall, was recorded last night by Mr. G. Kaye. The tombola, attended by over 650 people last night, has greatly increased in popularity, as evidenced by the large attendance.

The following were among those who won prizes:

J. Greenhill, F. Watson, F. Phillips, H. F. Leeves, H. Harris, A. Barlette, R. Swift, A. Collins, V. Smith, R. Slack, O. S. Howard, Mrs. R. Higgins, L. Goodhue, G. Lees, H.M.S. Eagle, J. Louis, J. Bolton, E. J. Andrews, S. H. Evans, G. Hughes, Mrs. W. J. Clarke, J. Calder, A. G. Reed, J. Hough, W. Crawley, G. Clark, J. Polk, J. Wardle, R.A., J. Rigg, G. Owen, H. Clark, W. H. Brown, Cpl. A. Allison, H. E. Ferris, P. Gibson and J. Hutchings.

The band from the First Battalion Lincolns will play at Friday evening's all-ranks dance at the Garrison Lecture Hall, by permission of Major J. A. Griffin and Officers.

The annual dinner dance of the Chinese Canadian Club will be held on Friday evening at the Hong Kong Hotel Roof Garden.

Although handicapped by only having four forwards, the Chinese fought gamely, pugging the Recreio forwards back time and again.

In a last-minute effort, the Police forced the play into the Recreio goal area, and E. Silva foolishly handled a harmless centre. From the spot kick, Cheung Kam gave the Police the lead; a win scarcely deserved on the run of the play.

Medicals Lucky To Beat Railway

The R.A.M.C. were lucky to defeat the Railway team by the odd goal in three.

At half-time both teams had scored once, Ronnie registering for the R.A.M.C. and Wong Kam Woon scored for the Railway. After the interval Pym scored the winning goal for his side. Slater had a chance of increasing the lead with a penalty which he, however, failed to convert.

Beecham Leads Airmen To Easy Win

Playing at the Valley yesterday the Royal Air Force proved superior to the Royal Engineers, winning by five goals to nil.

Corporal Beecham played a great game at right-back for the R.A.F., whilst Tate (2), Gregory (2) and Thompson succeeded in netting the ball. A particularly brilliant display by Sapper Carter, playing in goal, probably averted a much greater defeat for the R.E.

PICTURESQUE LOCAL WEDDING

Girl Guides Tribute Happy Bride

MOSS-STOKER AT ST. JOHN'S

A popular wedding was solemnised at St. John's Cathedral yesterday afternoon when Miss Nellie "Betty" Moss, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Moss, became the bride of Mr. William Stoker, of the Hong Kong Electric Company, and the younger son of the late Mr. A. E. and Mrs. Stoker, of Harrogate and York, England. The Rev. H. W. Baines officiated.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, Mr. G. C. Moss, superintendent of the Kowloon Fire Brigade, was accompanied by the Misses Dorothy Moss, the bride's younger sister, Doris Brooks, and Raymonde Blackmore, as bridesmaids, while the bride's youngest sister, Victoria, was flower girl.

Attending the bride as matron of honour was her mother.

The bride, who made a charming picture, wore a graceful ivory satin and lace gown by "Eunice". The unusually long train, which was carried by Victoria Moss, was dotted with tiny orange blossom sprays. A beautiful Bretonne net veil was caught to the head by a halo of orange blossoms and crystals.

A bouquet of white roses with satin ribbon streamers falling at odd lengths, each ending with a rosebud, was carried.

Picturesque Attendant

The bride's long train was taken care of by a very picturesque attendant in the person of little Miss Victoria Moss, who was dressed in a pale pink georgette "Early Victorian" gown trimmed with rosebuds on similar lines to the bride's train. A silver bag, silver shoes, and a halo of forget-me-nots and silver leaves completed the ensemble.

Following the trainbearer were three demure bridesmaids, the Misses D. Moss, D. Brooks and R. Blackmore, gowned in pastel shades of daffodil, pale blue, and green georgette delicately made with frills and finished with silver and georgette sashes—dainty, muffs, were carried instead of bouquets—and haloes of silver and georgette.

Mrs. Moss, as matron of honour, appeared in a deep pansy gown of georgette with hat to match and a corsage of maiden hair fern and pansies.

Mr. A. L. Fisher, of the Hong Kong Telephone Company, undertook the duties of best man, while Messrs G. C. Moss Jnr. A. R. Moss and L. D. Skinner were the groomsmen. Mr. F. Mason was at the organ.

Guide Guard Of Honour

After the reception the couple passed through a guard of honour of 18 of the 5th. Kowloon Girl Guide Troop, of which Miss Betty Moss is the captain.

The happy couple's car was escorted to the Hong Kong Electric Recreation Club, North Point, by four combination and two solo machines of the Motor Cycle Section of the Hong Kong Volunteer, led by Sgt. Rodgers, of which "Bill" Stoker is a very popular member.

At the reception, which was attended by over 250 guests, the bridegroom's health was proposed by Mr. F. F. Duckworth, of the Hong Kong Electric.

The couple left for a week's honeymoon at Cheung Chau on the No. 2 Police Launch from Railway pier at 7 p.m. The bride's going-away dress was a pretty sage blue ensemble of corded velvet with a smart beret to match.

"Eunice" was responsible for both gowns of the bride, that of her mother, and those of her four attendants.

The bridegroom is well known in the sporting circles of the Colony, being Honorary Secretary of the Kowloon Golf Club as well as an accountant of the Hong Kong Jockey Club.

LEE-MA AT UNION CHURCH

Pretty Chinese Wedding

A pretty wedding took place, at the Union Church, Jordan Road, Kowloon, yesterday afternoon, when Miss Lee Oi-ming, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Tin-tung, of No. 247 Tam Kong Road, Kowloon City, was wedded to Mr. Ma Yuen-ohang, of the staff of the Sincere and Company, and second son of Mr. and Mrs. Ma Tin-chang.

THE PASSING HOUR

has been continuous. There has been first a daring exploit done with somewhat doubtful engine and a great deal of publicity and admiration. Then limitation and an accident or two. Then improvement of motive power and control, and to what had been a nine days' wonder is being done almost as a matter of course without any comment at all. It may well be that it will be some time before the expense of this particular test will be incurred again; but at any rate shorter flights will have lost their element of wonder, and the record breaker will be expected to travel at not less than a hundred and seventy miles an hour. According to precedent the next stage will be to "consolidate the front" by making the rate and long hops safe, by improving something or other; and then will come the stage of multiplying the machines that can tackle the task.

The weak point of aeronautics at present is the expense of speed. If the engine is to be kept at full power all the way, only urgency will justify the cost. But if the demand for speed is reduced, there is no reason why a much more moderate use of mechanical power should not be combined with the new art of gliding. Only a few weeks ago an amateur glider, with no mechanical aid at all remained three hours in the air, and travelled a hundred miles. The knowledge of air currents necessary for such a performance could of course only have been acquired by experience of petrol-driven planes; but in its way it seems to be just as interesting an exploit as the famous race; for if that is possible what is to prevent a development of a combination plane with a light engine for use as a glider as a new amateur sport with great possibilities of individual travel; like the first timid use of steam engines at sea as auxiliary to sail? The next actual step will apparently be the anchored sea-drome in the middle of the ocean, which provides many spots of not too many fathoms depth; and then will come some adaptation of the helicopter which will make landing safe without a drome at all.

CHRISTOPHER BEAN IN CHINESE

Tribute To Mr. O'Yang

A Chinese version of the "Late Christopher Bean", by Rene Fauchois, the French playwright, was given by the Modern Dramatic Society at the Chinese Y.M.C.A., Bridges Street last night, with Mr. O'Yang Yu-ohon at the head of a well-selected and capable cast.

The play, rendered in Chinese dialogue, and in which the late Marie Dressler and Lionel Barrymore were featured, was greatly appreciated. Great credit for its success is due to Mr. O'Yang, who is known as the leader of the Neo-dramatic Movement in China, and who personally directed the play. Messrs. Ho Yim and Ho Cho also deserve the highest praise.

Under the auspices of the Hong Kong University Medical Society Dr. Li Shu Fan will deliver a lecture entitled, "Impressions of the Congress of the Far Eastern Association of Tropical Medicine" on Wednesday at 6.15 p.m. in the Union Assembly Room of the University. All interested are welcome.

of No. 280 Tai Nam Street, Sham-shuipo.

The Rev. Chang Chok-ling, Minister of the Hop Yai Church, assisted by the Rev. E. G. Powell, Minister of the Union Church, officiated.

Mr. Anderson Miller was at the organ.

The bride, who was given away by her grandfather, Mr. Lee Ki-cheung, looked charming in a simple white silk dress; she carried a well-varied bouquet of flowers. Miss Lee Oi-yun, the bridesmaid, was dressed similarly to the bride.

The flower-girls were the little Misses Lee Oi-lan and Cheung Kam-lung, while Mr. Ma Yung-wai performed the duties of the best man. Master Lee Hon-ki acted as the page boy.

After the wedding a reception was held at the roof garden of the Sincere and Company, where over 500 guests were received.

The honeymoon will be spent in the country and later in Canton. Crossley and Sandford were in great form for the winners, each bagging three goals, while Garwood and Pritchard obtained the others.

MY MONEY

Goddy rarely left his chair, his appetite was hearty—what he gave to his daughter out of his old-age pension grew less and less.

Mr. Webber was a good-tempered, harmless young man, but he had eyes that could see. Without intending to do so, he saw what his father-in-law put into his mouth. Mr. Goddy ate and smoked more than ever. His pipe rarely went out, so that sometimes Grace only received three shillings for a week's board. Mr. Goddy understood gifts. He bought avocets for Tommy, and so Grace was satisfied.

Mr. Goddy had eyes as well as Mr. Webber. When he was watching he began to watch too. He knew his son-in-law was no artist; it was not the sturdy selfhood, or the hoary head of the old man that he admired; he was inquisitive only to see what went into his mouth. Goddy's teeth were good, he could bite anything.

When an old man wishes to keep roof over his head he will use the same cunning as a fox. A word spoken by Mr. Webber made John Goddy consider. The workhouse had been named.

A long frost had given way at last, leaving behind it a cold, muddy earth and a dull, unwholesome air. One week John Goddy only gave his daughter one shilling and sixpence.

The weather made Mr. Webber gloomy, he wished more than ever to drive a car of his own to the dance-hall in the town. Only the brightest lights, and young women with painted lips, could move his winter's gloom. His expenses were increased. He now began to owe money. He also began to be sullen and depressed. Taking a matchbox from the fireplace, he gave his father-in-law and his chair a rude push. John Goddy nearly toppled into the fire.

The old man gave Mr. Webber an odd look, and that evening, he mentioned, "My money!"

"My money," he said, when Grace handed him his tea. "Maybe I don't mind where they hundreds buried!" Then he began to tell how much he had saved, first as a ship's cook and then as a baker, until he rented a little ground at Maddox, which he only gave up when Grace's mother died.

After telling this story, he was silent for a while. Then he said slowly, "There be six hundred pounds, buried in Flowers Acre!" "The field is barren," said Mr. Webber, "no one works it."

"Tis to be hired for a few shillings," said Goddy.

And now, when Mr. Goddy spoke, it was always about his buried money.

Grace went to visit her sister at Dodder and told her the news. But Gertrude only laughed. "That's an old tale," she said. "When he lived here, he said, 'My money's hidden in old Ford's barn.' It's only his lies and make-believe!"

Grace told her husband what Gertrude had said. Mr. Webber was angry that he had allowed himself to be deceived so easily. Wishing to dry his clothes by the fire, he pushed the old man out of the way.

John Goddy began to be cold, but he felt in his pocket and found something. It was a banker's receipt for six hundred pounds. "Tis all my money," he said, "but it wouldn't have done to tell this lying toad, Gertrude, nothing. 'Twas to put me on a wrong scent that I said old Ford's barn."

Mr. Webber pulled the old man back to the fire, and asked to see the paper. The receipt was in order. "I did draw out my money," said Goddy, "and did bury 'em in a box where cart-grease were put, in Flowers Acre."

Mr. Goddy was closely questioned as to whereabouts he had hid the money. He had buried it, he said, upon a foggy night by the light of a small lantern. But the fog was so dense that he could not say how far he had walked into the field, and all he could remember was that, after he had dug the hole and buried the box he had found it hard to discover the field gate.

Mr. Webber saw himself at the wheel of a trim neat and new motorcar.

"Tis only ten pounds I do want for myself," said Goddy. "The rest be yours."

"Would a plough turn up the box?" asked Mr. Webber, excitedly.

"Tis too deep in for that," answered John Goddy. "If thee do want my money, thee must dig for 'em. Tis all gold in this box."

The next evening Mr. Webber came in to say that he had hired the field.

Then he began to dig. He hoped to find what he sought quickly. He dug right across the field. "It will take two years to search the whole field," he said to John Goddy.

"Thee may find 'em any day," John Goddy replied.

Where peace and plenty had used to be, now that ugly churl Want showed herself. But John Goddy was well fed. He made a shift, when the family was upon the hill, to visit the inn, where he bought food and a cup of ale. And now it was but a few coppers that he gave weekly to his daughter.

"While 'my money' was being looked for the farm was neglected. At Flowers Acre every spit of ground must be examined with care; the work went on slowly.

One night, after digging all day, Mr. Webber returned with a sullen look. Again John Goddy fumbled in the inner pocket of his coat and brought out a gold coin.

"They t'other hundreds be all same as this," he said, knowingly.

The family, who had once been so tidy, were now little better than beggars. Their clothes hung in rags. Grace and Tommy would go to the field, too; they scraped and dug with Mr. Webber.

So the summer passed. When the winter came, John Goddy piled the fire high. He bought coal himself, and did anyone peep through the window, there the old man would be, sitting upon his chair before the blazing fire, and smoking merrily.

Mr. Webber used to be a man, much respected in the village. It was now otherwise. "What do 'ee go out to hill for?" people asked.

"Is it to catch moles or to find flintstones?" Those who had bought milk at the farm began to go elsewhere. "There be plenty of water at home," they said. "We don't need to buy milk where the pump be best cow!"

When John Goddy went to the inn, he used to mock at Grace and at her husband, too. "I be the one to hold up house," he would say. "Without my money, they would all starve." He would then ask for a cup of ale, and light his pipe.

"Tis their pleasure to go a-digging," he would say, with a wink at the landlady.

One day the cows were all gone. Mrs. Webber had gone out early into the pasture and returned alone. The cows had been sold for debt. Even the household furniture was threatened. But John Goddy, when he heard of that never left his chair.

MOTORING NOTES

TEN MILLION CARS FOR ENGLAND

Sir Herbert Austin's Prediction

Sir Herbert Austin, the motor-car manufacturer, expressed an optimistic view of the future of the motor industry in moving a vote of thanks to the chairman at the annual meeting of the Triplex Safety Glass Company last month.

"I am definitely of the opinion," said Sir Herbert, "that we have not touched the fringe of the possible market for motorcars. I should not be surprised in ten years' time to see at least 10,000,000 cars in use in Britain. At present the number is little over a million."

"In Britain we have a proportion of one car to every 35 of the population. In America the proportion is one to every five. It does not seem reasonable that we should carry on with so small a number of cars as we have done in the immediate past."

LIVE FISH BY ROAD IN CANADA

Trucks And Trailers Used For Work

Five thousand pounds of live fish per month are carried regularly by road by a Canadian firm, says "Motor Transport."

A truck drawing a two-wheel trailer is used for the work, and on both truck and trailer is mounted a tank. These tanks are linked together by pipes, and a small pumping mechanism keeps the water flowing between the two to aerate them and so keep the fish in good condition.

AUSTRALIA FAVOURS BRITISH-MADE CARS

In future, all cars imported into Australia will have to be at least 50 per cent. British made before advantage can be taken of the Imperial preference rates of duty. Hitherto, the percentage has been 25.

CHARCOAL BRICKS FOR WORKING LORRIES

A new Swedish invention has been put on the market by which, it is claimed, a heavy motor vehicle can be run on charcoal briquettes at a cost 60 per cent. less than running on petrol.

The Swedish State authorities, says "Motor Transport," have shown great interest in the invention and have supported it in various ways.

FUEL-USED FOR ENGINE AND REFRIGERATOR

A Detroit firm has brought out a new refrigerating unit for trucks, which is operated by the fuel that runs the motor.

According to "Motor Transport," a special fuel named Petrogas is used. It is changed into gas form for the refrigerating process, and then passes on in its gas form to the engine of the truck to be burnt as fuel.

HOW TO CURE ROAD ILLS

When The Petrol Pipe Breaks

RUBBER HOSE USEFUL

A broken petrol line, in the middle of the night, afflicts miles from nowhere, is not very pleasing. In fact, lacking the necessary materials to effect repair, about the only feasible thing to do is to climb back into your motorcar and go to sleep, writes a correspondent in the Times of India.

Heavy going tends to crystallize the copper tubes; and normal engine vibration is also a contributory cause. It is not feasible to have these important lengths of tubing annealed after every few hours of driving, such as is done to those of an aeroplane engine, and it is impossible to carry a large assortment of spare parts.

For this reason it is suggested that among the regular equipment such as screw-driver, spanners and wheel changing tools, there be included a short length of heavy rubber hose, with an inside diameter of the proper size to fit tightly over the petrol pipe, then, of course, if a break occurs it is merely necessary to link the broken ends of pipe with the rubber tubing.

Lost Ignition Key

It is a quite simple matter to rig up a substitute for a lost key which will serve the purpose until such time as a new key can be constructed. Get a short piece of insulated wire, which will reach between the ignition coil and the electric horn. Locate the horn and you will find that it has two connection terminals; it is necessary to determine which is the earth connection and which is the accumulator connection.

If one end of the repair wire is held against one of these terminals and the other end of the wire held against the engine block, the horn will be sounded; that is not the desired terminal. Repeat this process, using the other terminal, and a shower of sparks will be seen.

The terminal which causes the shower of sparks is the one needed to affect the temporary repair, so loosen the nut and fasten one end of the wire to it. Next, locate the coil. The coil you will find, has three connections leading from it. Two of these lead to the distributor and one, the one needed, leads to the instrument board.

Take the other end of the length of repair wire and attach it to this terminal, and the job will be completed, making it possible to start the motorcar engine in the usual manner, except for disregarding the switch.

U.S. BUS COMPANIES PROSPER

2,382,015,000 Passengers Carried In 1933

As many as 1,672,015,000 passengers were carried in 1933 by the 45,000 buses operated in the United States of America, according to "Motor Transport."

In addition to these vehicles there are in operation as many as 60,300 school buses, which, in 1933, carried 710,000,000 passengers.

RUSSIAN REFUGEES IN MANCHURIA

Plea For White Slave Traffic Victims

(By HEBE SPAULL)

Geneva.
The discussions which took place in the Sixth Commission of the Assembly of the League of Nations regarding the plight of Russian refugees in Manchuria, provided an opportunity for indirect hits against the Soviet Government.

The women delegates, led by Miss Clara Campoamor of Spain, urged that the Commission should give special attention to the plight of the Russian women in Manchuria who had fallen victims of the white slave traffic. They drew attention to a resolution adopted by the Advisory Committee for the Protection of Children and Young People at its session in April of this year urging the Assembly to make a grant to the Nansen Office to enable a beginning to be made towards rendering assistance to these unfortunate women.

The men delegates were a little diffident in their support but one saw in the occasion an opportunity to hint broadly to his fellow members of the Commission that Russia, the country responsible for the fact that these people were exiles, was hardly a fit State to be admitted to the League. The framers of the Covenant, he declared, could not have envisaged, he was sure, a State driving its citizens from its borders because of their religious and political beliefs and so throwing on to other States the burden of supporting them.

Other speakers, dealing with another refugee problem, namely that of the settlement of Armenian refugees, referred to the assistance which is being given with the co-operation of the Soviet Government, in the settlement of refugees in the Republic of Erivan. One could not help wondering what turn the discussion would have taken if Russia had been represented on the Commission.

It was perhaps inevitable that the Chinese delegate should get up and assure those present that his Government would continue to give all the assistance in its power to these women but that, as most of the women were in Manchuria, owing to circumstances over which his Government had no control, the extent of their assistance was limited. As regards those in Shanghai and elsewhere the existence of foreign concessions was a complicating factor.

Simla.

Dr. P. C. Visser, Consul-General for Holland in India, and the man who found fish in a lake 22,000 feet above sea level, is to start on another expedition into the unexplored Karakorum (Himalayas) in April.

He will leave Srinagar and travel to the Shyok-Dam by way of Leh. The Shyok is the river whose waters are held back by a gigantic wall of ice and which threaten to break through and spread death and desolation in the Punjab every year.

Dr. Visser's discoveries in the Shyok region have already proved important to the authorities in India. On his next expedition his wife and two officers of the Survey of India will accompany him.

FISH CRIPPLES A YACHT

Delays Start Of World Tour

A giant fish, colliding with a yacht, has delayed the progress of a world tour at its beginning.

Thomas Spriggs, thirty-two, and Cecil Johnson, twenty-one, set out from Seaham before dawn recently in the five-ton yacht, Kazak.

When about nine miles from Scarborough the fish—believed to be a tunny—struck the yacht, smashing the propeller and starting a leak.

The two yachtmen soaked their shirts in petrol to create fires and sent up very lights, but without result.

At dawn their plight was observed by a small fishing boat, and they were towed into Scarborough.

POINTS IN PLAY

(By LADY RHODES)

THIS week I am giving my readers two interesting examples of high contracts from recent games which illustrate points in play.

The first hand was played in five clubs. No one was vulnerable, and the bidding was:

1st round	2nd round
N. 1 Club	3 No Trumps
E. 1 Heart	No Bid
S. 3 Clubs	No Bid
W. No bid	4 Diamonds
3rd round	4th round
N. No Bid	No Bid
E. No Bid	No Bid
S. 5 Clubs	No Bid
W. No Bid

I give the bidding as it occurred! The hands were:

North—
S—J 5 2
H—Q J 6
D—Q
C—A K Q J 8 5

West—
S—A 9 7 3
H—7
D—K 10 8 7 6 4 3
C—2

East—
S—Q 10 8
H—K 10 9 8 4 3 2
D—9 6
C—7

South—
S—K 6 4
H—A 6
D—A J 2
C—10 8 6 4 3

East opened with the 9 of diamonds, taken by dummy's Ace. The declarer, after the round of clubs, led the Queen of hearts. East played the King and dummy won the trick. The two of diamonds was then led from dummy and trumped by the declarer. North then led the Knave of heart, followed by the five, which she trumped in dummy.

The next lead was dummy's Knave of diamonds. West played the King and North, instead of trumping, discarded a small spade. By this discard she made certain of her contract. Whatever West now leads, East and West can only make one more trick. If a spade is led, dummy's King must make, whichever opponent holds the Ace. If a diamond is led, North can discard another spade and trump in dummy.

Had the declarer trumped the third diamond and endeavoured to make a trick out of her spades, she would have failed to do so, as the cards actually lay, East and West, in this instance, were powerless.

In the second example, which is a hand of the same type, I am going to show you how East and West could have defeated the contract, but in actual play failed to do so. North was playing a five diamond contract. I will not go into the question of the bidding, except to say that spades had been bid by East.

North's hand was:
S—9 2 H—10 7
D—Q J 9 7 6 4 2 C—K 3
and her partner's was:
S—A H—A 9
D—A K 10 5 8 C—J 10 9 5 4

The King of spades was led. Now North saw that if the A, Q of clubs were wrong for her—i.e., in East's hand, which was likely, as she had bid—she must lose two clubs and a heart. Her best hope of making the contract, then, was to force East to lead a club to her, so she proceeded on this plan. She won the lead of the King of spades with the Ace, had one round of trumps, and then ruffed her remaining spade. She then led the Ace of hearts and a little one.

West unsuspectingly played a low heart, and East had to take the trick. Whatever East now led she and her partner could only make one more trick. West could have defeated this contract by playing her Queen on the second round of hearts and leading a club up to her partner. A difficult defence, but an interesting one.

East and West's hands were:
West—
S—Q 8 6 4 3 H—K J 2
D—10 7 6 5 S—K Q J 8 4
D—8 C—D—
C—7 6 C—A Q 8 2

MY MONEY

Mr. Webber looked changed; his hair and beard grew, and his eyes became wild. A new year was come, bringing with it cold and sickness.

The family, with the exception of John Goddy, had not enough to eat. But they still dug on. "My money is very near you now," John Goddy would say when they returned home tired out, and when he said that his eyes glistened with cunning.

The frost came, and Mr. Mr. Webber was forced to take a pick into the field instead of a spade. A low fever seized them, and yet they went to the hills for so great was their desire to find the gold.

"A day came when Mr. Webber had not strength to use the pick. He was forced to lay the tool down. But Grace took it up and went on hacking at the hard ground. She had laid Tommy under the ivy bush where the blackbird noticed him, wondering.

Then Grace let the pick fall. "Sister Gerlie is right!" she cried. "She did always say that, those baint no such thing to be found. 'E has lied to we."

Mr. Webber took up the pick. "Bring on the child," he said, sternly. "I be going home. I have something to do there." He swung the pick and dashed it into the ground.

"He shouldered the tool and went off, with the steady walk of a man who has made up his mind to do an important thing. A countryman looks ahead; that which he sows he expects to reap. If he does murder he knows what will come of it. As Mr. Webber walked, he saw a rather kindly and sorrowful old gentleman put a black cap upon his head, in a crowded court. Mr. Webber strode down the lane.

Some gods are dangerous to worship—Jehovah is one of them. Fire is another, John Goddy had heaped the coal high. Then he felt warm. He smoked his pipe, and fell asleep. He dreamed that Mr. Webber came in, with a pick in his hand. He saw his son-in-law raise the pick. He felt the blow coming. The dream troubled him. He started up out of his chair, and fell upon the fire.

When Mr. Webber came in all was smoke. But, with the door open, the smoke cleared. Upon the hearth he found John Goddy, half burnt—dead. His god, after the manner of gods, had destroyed him.

Mr. Webber carried the pick to the woodshed. When he came back he examined the kitchen.

John Goddy's chair was partly burnt, the cape seat was gone, but in a cavity under the seat, he saw something that he had been looking for—Gold!

When John Goddy was buried, and the funeral over, Mr. Webber drove his family in his new motorcar to the dance hall at Weyminster. There they drank tea and watched the dances, while the band played. When a friendly-looking old gentleman came by, wearing a little black skull cap upon his head, Mr. Webber smiled.

MAN KILLED BY WASP STING

Virulent Germ Causes Illness

A wasp-biting caused the death of William Walter Edward Kirk, aged 28, a motor-lorry driver, of Leamore-street, Hammersmith, who died in the West London Hospital.

His wife said at the inquest: today that her husband came home from work on August 22, and complained that he had been stung on his right wrist. He treated it with iodine.

The next day he went to the West London Hospital where he received treatment. He continued to work for several days before he was admitted to the hospital where he died later.

Virulent Germ.
Sir Bernard Spillbury said that death was due to acute blood poisoning, consequent on an ulcer on the right wrist.

The coroner (Dr. Edwin Smith).—We may accept the man's statement that it was due to a wasp bite?—Yes.

The coroner said that often an insect bite was a simple matter, but in a virulent germ happened to be present when the victim was stung, it caused a fatal illness.

A verdict of Accidental Death was recorded.

HEAVY INDUSTRY REVIVAL

Faint Signs Reflected On Wall Street

WHOLESALE TRADE BOOM

SPECIAL TO SUNDAY HERALD. New York, Yesterday.

Faint signs of a revival in the heavy industries are reflected in the upturn of machine-tool orders and the steel scrap price, the latter advancing 25 cents per ton to-day.

Favourable market factors to-day were that September wholesale trade in the New York area was 5 per cent above September last year, according to the Federal Reserve, and the contra-seasonal car loadings' gain.

Unfavourable factors were that the September net operating income of 40 railroads was 35.7 per cent below last year, and that the September steel industry employment roll was 6 per cent below August and 10 per cent below September last year.—United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

NANKING AND CANTON STILL POLES APART

tral Authorities have not indicated any acceptance of the South-west circular telegrams of September 8 and 25.

In the meantime, Judge Wang Chung-hui, who offers his good office to bring about some understanding between the Nanking and Canton factions, was scheduled to meet Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, Chairman of the Military Affairs Commission, at Peking to-day. The Nanking military chief has declined to see other callers.

Whether the internal rift can be avoided depends largely on the Generalissimo, it is learned from well-informed quarters. If he has no intention to upset the South-West applecart, there will be no estrangement between Canton and Nanking.

The Generalissimo is represented as desirous of effecting national unity and advocating a strong central government. Whether he can achieve this end depends on how soon the Communists in Kiangsi and Fukien can be wiped out, it is believed.

Kiangsi War

The alleged loss of Anyuan to the Reds has not been admitted in military reports, hence the statement in outpost papers that "Anyuan has been captured" is groundless. It is also denied that the Reds are fighting with their "full strength" since it is obvious that a good many of them are retreating westward towards Southern Hunan.

"Correspondents of several outpost vernacular papers seem to know more about the fighting in Southern Kiangsi than we do," declared an intelligence officer who returned from the front last night. "I am surprised at reading the detailed and graphic reports of these correspondents. The stories are certainly melodramatic, but largely without foundation."

REDS RETREAT TO YUTOW

The two so-called political directors of the Reds, who were captured by the troops of the Kiangsi 1st Division during the battle at Anshih, described the threat at Anyuan as tactics. They said that the Reds intended to make off to the west and that they dared not advance to the south border of Kiangsi. They created disturbances in Anyuan, because they attempted to divert the attention of the South Route Forces.—Central Press.

ROYAL CABINET CHIEF APPOINTED

sought advice from the Acting High-Commissioner, Mr. Maurice Peterson, on this matter. Mr. Peterson consulted Whitehall and advised Yehia Pasha to appoint a new Chief of the Royal Cabinet as a liaison between the King, the Cabinet and the Residency, a post which has not been filled since 1931.

It was declared yesterday that Mr. Peterson's advice was unpalatable, and an accusation of interference on the part of Mr. Peterson and a denial that Yehia Pasha had sought British counsel, was made, causing strained relations between the Residency and the Premier.

RAILROAD PENSION ACT

Appeal Against Ruling Filed In Court

SPECIAL TO SUNDAY HERALD. (By Telegram, Copyright, Telegraph, United Press, Associated Press, Received October 27, 8:35 a.m.)

Washington, Yesterday.

The United States Attorney General, Mr. Homer S. Cummings, states that the Government has sent the appeal ruling against the Railroad Pension Act to the United States Supreme Court, and has also announced early court proceedings against the Texas "hot oil" producers.—United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

A.O.F.C. NIGHT TELEGRAM

The following cables were received at midnight by the American Oriental Finance Corporation during their night service:

The cotton market is expected to open higher. The project for having the Government to assume foreign exchange risks by clearing exports through the stabilisation fund is potentially favourable to all American exports, including cotton. In wheat, the Chicago domestic situation is bullish from all angles. Winnipeg will probably reflect nervousness regarding Government regulation over the week-end. Not much change in the rubber market is expected. The market opened unchanged and very listless with no volume. California stocks are better. Cotton: Selling is light. There is better domestic trade, offsetting tone steady.
